The indicator showed that the car had been driven 60 miles. One of the tires had been blown out. A pair of fine gloves which Mr. Jones had left in the seat when he went to church were still in the seat when the car was found.

President Rufus C. Holman of the Oregon association of county judges and commissioners has called a meeting of the association at Salem September 29 for the purpose of securing funds for representing Oregon farm products at the International farm congress at El Paso, Texas, October 17-26. No money is available from the state treasury for this purpose, nor from the agricultural college, and it is up to the counties to contribute money if the state is to be represented.

You'll be glad you came; you'll go away satisfied. Oregon State Fair, Sept. 25 to 30.

Here is a chance for some good citizen to serve the Commercial club, and represent the city at the Oregon state grocers association which meets at Pendleton Sept. 21, 22 and 23. Delegates have not as yet been appointed to represent the city but the impression among business men is that if the right man attends and presents the claim of Salem to the next meeting the chances are favorable towards bringing the association here at the next annual session.

News from Camp Withycombe, received by way of Portland, is to the effect that the difficulty existing in Company M is being worked out. The report goes on to say "that there are so many lawyers in the command that difficulties arise because of 'stump court' decisions not in harmony with the views of the adjutant general of the United States." A sufficient number of men have taken, or will take, the new oath to permit the company to be recognized, and recruits will be secured after the return of the company to Salem.

Floyd M. Rush, the 16 year old school boy who enlisted in the army last week to take up wireless work, was just a natural born wireless operator. His father says that from the time he was 11 years old he was interested in the subject, beginning his experiments in telephoning with two tin cans and a wire. His wireless plant was all home built and the day before he enlisted, a message from the government's wireless at Los Angeles had been taken. Although he will enlist at the private's pay, fifteen dollars a month, in the wireless work his advancement will be rapid. He was a pupil at the junior high school.

Is Your Child Handicapped in His or Her Physical Development by Defective Vision?

You should make sure by a thorough examination at the hands of a competent optometrist, that your child is not among this vast array of little citizens who suffer from defective eyesight. Delays often result seriously.

We make these examinations by the most scientific, accurate methods. If your child does not need glasses we will tell you so frankly.

GIRLS RAN AWAY FROM INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Of the Dozen Skipping Saturday Night, All But Three Caught

An even dozen girls ran away from the state industrial school late Saturday afternoon, and at this time three of them are still at large. Six of the girls were found Saturday night hiding in fields several miles from the institution. Three more were picked up last night at Jefferson.

The three who are still at large are Alma Rook and Jessie Peltou, of Portland, and Winifred Coldwell, of Ashland. When they made their escape the girls were sitting on the porch of the school working on an exhibit for the state fair. Suddenly Cleo Sheppard, of Portland, who is given credit for planning the affair and who was one of the first to be captured, jumped to her feet and cried, "All ready, girls, go." Miss Sheppard is reported to have put up a fight when discovered in hiding by the officers.

It is the opinion of Mrs. Hopkins, superintendent of the school, that a majority of the girls involved in the break have any grievance. She states that those who have been returned seem glad to be back. The girls told the officers who captured them that they were dissatisfied with the treatment given them by one of the attendants at the school.

BORN

WHITE—To Dr. and Mrs. Gibson T. White, Sunday September 17, 1916, at their home 2370 Myrtle avenue, a daughter.

Dr. White is a dentist with offices in the Eldridge block.

The government is not quite through with the boys in khaki at Clackamas and there will be several days delay on account of special physical examinations to be taken before the boys are mustered out. This will postpone the reception and banquet until the latter part of the week. In the meantime the Salem Patriotic league is going ahead with plans for the banquet and reception and the ladies promise the boys all they can eat of the best chicken pie ever made in Oregon. For the informal talks and welcoming addresses, a limit of about two minutes has been placed on the orators of the evening. This reception will be held in the armory by the ladies of the Patriotic league, assisted by the families of the returning soldiers.

Congressman Hawley arrived home Friday evening. After a day or two in his office in the city, he will begin taking up the general work of repairing his political fences and addressing county fairs and divers kinds of meetings, as there is an election for congressman in this district November 7 and Mr. Hawley happens to be the Republican nominee. With this in mind, he will speak at Oregon City Wednesday of this week, at the county fair and at Dallas Thursday at the fair. Friday will be given to attending a session of the Portland Realty board in a discussion of government aid to public highways. Saturday Mr. Hawley will go to Forest Grove. Monday an address will be given before the women's Republican club in Salem and the remainder of next week to shaking hands with the constituency who happen to be attending the state fair.

If a child's sight is imperfect, correct glasses should be obtained at once. If this is done, the child usually grows out of the trouble—but otherwise the defect increases until glasses are needed for life, while a cure becomes impossible.

Many children's school hours are a torture because of defective vision. The child very often does not realize its defects, and the parent does not suspect trouble—this makes it necessary for examination to discover the defective sight.

I have corrected thousands of children's eyes and if after making examination I find glasses are not needed, I will frankly tell you. I do not experiment with your eyes and my charges are very reasonable.

I use no drugs or drops in making examinations.

DR. M. P. MENDELSON, Rooms 209-210-211 United States Nat'l Bk. Bldg.

One Hundred Years of Progress

From the large brick fireplace with its roaring fire and huge iron pots, with its uncertainty, smoke and dirt, to the modern, automatic gas range—quick, cool and tidy—is the change a century has made in cooking. It is the history of gas.

The world is today celebrating the 100th anniversary of the discovery of gas. A hundred years ago gas was first put to use by man. Year by year its application was extended until.

Gas Is the Fuel of Today

Gas lights and warms man's home, cooks his meals, heats his bath, lightens labor in kitchen and laundry, consumes his waste.

Gas has a thousand industrial uses—in a thousand ways it increases man's efficiency by increasing factory output, raising quality standards, cutting down expense. Undoubtedly you can use gas to advantage in your factory—certainly in your home.

Call 85 and investigate.
